Wilmington Trust Not a Lexington Precision Creditor

Wilmington, DE, April 2, 2008 – Wilmington Trust, a leading provider of institutional trustee, agency, and administrative services through its Corporate Client Services (CCS) business, said today that it is serving as indenture trustee for holders of debt issued by Lexington Precision Corporation, which filed for Chapter 11 protection yesterday in the United States Bankruptcy Court, Southern District of New York.

This bankruptcy filing lists Wilmington Trust among Lexington Precision's largest unsecured creditors. In fact, Wilmington Trust is not a creditor, unsecured or otherwise, to Lexington Precision. Wilmington Trust's relationship with Lexington Precision consists of the indenture trustee services it provides for Lexington Precision's bondholders.

As indenture trustee, Wilmington Trust acts at the direction of bondholders to administer certain provisions of the trust indenture, which is a formal agreement between debt issuers and bondholders. Through its CCS business, Wilmington Trust is paid a fee for these services. Lexington Precision's bankruptcy filing has no effect on Wilmington Trust's balance sheet, credit quality, or financial condition.
